VICTORY HORSESHOE

Read my children,
And you shall hear
The craziest will
Of this whole year,

Because--

We, the studes of G. H. S. of Land of Nowhere on the continent America, planet Earth, floating somewhere in the ether, do hereby bequeath by reasn of doubtful mind and body, the following:

Jack Alspaugh, who this summer ditches did dig,
Wills Luanna's lovingness to Jackie Garbig.

Bob Blocher, who is planning to be a Nash dealer,
His ability to "lure women" he wills to Merlin Keeler.

Hollie Burk, who wishes to know more about horses and colts,
Wills his patience to our English teacher, Miss Bucholtz.

Priscilla Burk, who likes to drive tractors with plows,
Wills Dixie Hollinger her manageable eyebrows.

Chester Burns, who is certainly always full of vim,
Wills "Elwood" to anyone who thinks he can handle him.

Betty Dickey, who loves to listen to the music of Bert Farber,
Wills her well-groomed appearance to Opal Garber.

Janeva Etzler, who often proves to be a faker,
Wills her "love-making" ability to Virginia Brubaker.

Ruth Fields, who in her home will have every modern facility,
To Katie Kissinger wills her "landing a man" ability.

Wade Flora, who does things with absolutely no hesitancy,
To Lowell Baker wills his F. F. A. presidency.

Dorothy Garber, who when driving, does not know her gears,
Wills to Harrison Monnier her tiny ears.

Gene Hawes, who with all the girls is quite a thriller,
Wills his "manly figure" to Eldon Miller.

Don Horner, who has chosen Pauline as his pride and glory,
Wills his ability for "good-behavior" to John Flory.

Eddie Jakubowski, who from classes is always sneaking,
Wills his Eng. seat to anyone who can stop its squeaking.

Willard Keeler, who, with anyone, likes to match his wit,
Wills anything he has to anyone who thinks he can use it.

Wilda Kendall, who always takes George along "just for protection",
Wills to anyone wanting it, her "Sailor Collection".

George Laughman, who loves to play basketball and whose future is not foretold,
Wills his base and basketball uniforms to Bob Mangold.

Evelyn Lavy, who all through high school has given and received many photos,
Would like to will her "slim figure" to Karen Bozes.

Jack Linder, who with Miss Ross's assistance is learning to bake,
Wills to anyone who deserves it, his nickname "Snake".

Janice Long, who really should be nicknamed "Killer",
Wills her gruff voice and temper to Marcia Miller.

Adrian Miller, who has never tried to be a charmer,
Wills his curly hair to Johnny Farmer.

Duane Morton, dark-haired and never seeming to be pious,
Wills his ability to use "cuticura" to Harold Zacharias.

Janet Nease, who often gets up late and barely makes it to school on time,
Wills her weight and ability to diet to Esther Petersime.

Mary Anna Petersime, who plans to be a left tackle for the Navy,
Wills her ability to break seats to cute Ray Lavy.

Carolyn Powell, who often gets, on her face at others jokes, a simper,
Wishes to will to Coach Fasick, her terrible temper.

Cecil Pugh, who is a tall guy with iron in his veins,
Wills to anyone with a big head, his so-called, "Brains".

Jeanette Skiles, who all during high school no one has ever seen park,
Wills her admirer, Bob Blocher, to Miss Patricia Clark.

Walter Wirrig, who thinks basketball games should be played without one flaw,
Wills to Squeak Bixler, his height and "Lop-jaw".

The Two Burlap Sisters and Their Brother
(The Three Sacks)

Senior Class Prophecy

Hi! I'm Willard Keeler, your narrator for this tale. I am about to relate to you a little incident that happened way back in the summer of 1962. You see, I own the Keeler Trucking Company, Incorporated--coast to coast trucking. This day I happened to be traveling on U. S. Route 36 in the Eastern part of Ohio when I came into a great metropolis named Gettysburg. It finally dawned on me that this was the town and the school from which I graduated ten long years ago. I wondered what happened to all of those zany kids that were in that '52 graduating class.

It was getting near evening so I decided to find a place to park the truck and a place for me. I then noticed an enormous service station on the corner. The name of it was the Miller Brothers' Ultra-Modern Service Station and Fix-it Shop. Upon further investigation I found it was owned and operated by Adrian and Alvin Miller. Alvin managed the filling station and Adrian, the fix-it shop. Alvin took care of my truck for me.

As I was leaving a man in a sleak, black, '62 Cadillac pulled up to get refueled. I looked under the little goatee he was wearing and sure enough it was Cecil Pugh. Cecil told me he was now Professor Pugh, Director of Atomic Technology at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Cecil then continued on his way and I went to find a hotel to receive some accomodation.

I found the hotel right next door to the newly erected newspaper building. I entered the hotel, walked up to the desk, and who should confront me but another old classmate, Jack Alspaugh. Jack, it seems, is the eastern manager of a chain of nation wide hotels owned by Betty Dickey and her husband. Jack was watching the desk until the night clerk came on duty. Did I say "he"? My mistake, because just then she came rushing in and she just happened to be Dorothy Garber, another of my school chums. She sincerely apologized for being late, but she and her hubby had become so absorbed in the newspaper story about the parade the chamber of commerce was planning for the general she forgot all about the time.

Wondering who this general was I picked up the evening edition of the Gettysburg Times. I soon found out for there on the front page was a picture of General and Mrs. Norman Vanatta and children. Mrs. Vanatta was no one but another classmate, Ruth Fields.

I glanced over the front page and saw that Janet Nease was society editor and Hollie Burk was in charge of all the comic strips, pictures and prose. I couldn't find the editor's name anyplace, so remembering the newspaper building was just next door, I decided to go over and find out. I soon found to my profound amazement that the editor was Carolyn Powell. Gosh, I thought Cecil had married her long ago. I asked if I could see her, but it seems she had retired to her penthouse early with a slight headache.

I then returned to the hotel and would continue finding the rest of my friends in the morning.

The first thing I did next morning was to go down and look over the new Memorial Hospital and who should I find as the head nurse and supervisor but Miss Wilda Kendall, R. N. I wondered what had happened to all of her sailors. I guessed maybe her ship didn't come in.

I then was walking leisurely along the street gaping at the tall buildings and ran headlong into Don Horner and his wife. I learned that Don has the most efficient, modern mechanize farm in the entire state. They were going to the post office, so I invited myself along. If there hadn't been a cement floor in the building I'd have fallen through it when I saw Gene Bowes was the postmaster. After recovering from the shock I asked Gene the whereabouts of some of the others and he told me George Laughman was running a model agency which primarily modeled bathing suits. Janeva Etzler had married and was living on a farm down in Preble County.

I decided to go visit George and look over his merchandise. I found him sitting at a desk leaning back puffing on a big fat cigar surrounded by ten beauties in bathing suits. George told me he was a confirmed bachelor (I should live so long!) and often took trips to the deep, dark regions of Africa where he often came across Jeanette Skiles and her husband on missionary work doing wonders. It wasn't until then I noticed George's secretary in the background. She wore dark horn-rimmed glasses and her hair fixed in a bun at the nape of her neck. Imagine my surprise when I found it to be Evelyn Lavy. George was busy with the models so I talked with Evelyn. She told me she was in love with George, but so far he hadn't even noticed her.

I left George and Evelyn with their trials and tribulations, and becoming tired of walking I started looking for a U-Drive It Station. I found one soon ran by Eddie Jakubowski. He just happened to have a '62 Rolls Royce he said I could drive around rent free.

I was driving along at only about 80 miles per hour when I heard a police siren. Much to my relief the cop turned out to be Police Commissioner Walter Wirrig. Walter gave me a firm, but friendly, lecture and let me go.

I continued my drive down the beautiful boulevard until I saw the Fasick Jet Motor Plant off to the right. It was owned by Mr. Lloyd Fasick, my senior class advisor. After our class I can't blame him for going into an easier job. A new parking lot was being cleared by the plant. I was fascinated by the work one of the bulldozers was doing, when the driver jumped off and started pumping my hand up and down. It was Chester Burns. He told me he owned a whole fleet of bulldozers.

I began to feel hungry so I pulled my Rolls-Royce up to the next resturaunt. The name of it was "The Rendezvous" and a very ritzy place at that. My bill was $25 and as I was eyeing it coldly, Bob Blocher walked up, picked up the bill, and tore it into little pieces. He owned this place. I was glad I had broken no more than his nose when we were back in High school.

Bob then took me across the street to look at the theater Duane Morton ran called the "Mor-Ton Theater". The latest Broadway hit, "Duel on the Moon", was playing there.

I went back to the hotel to slick up a bit because I had to be getting on the road before long. As I looked into the mirror I was shocked by what looked back. I had been on the road for quite awhile and had forgotten all about my hair needing cut. I went down to the lobby and looked for a barber shop. I saw a sign that said "Tonsorial and Beauty Parlors" and went in. I got my hair cut right away and as I was taking my leave a woman came rushing into the room to borrow a special kind of scissors. I found her to be Priscilla Burk. She ran the beauty parlor and her husband ran the tonsorial parlor. I asked her what happened to Mary Anna Petersime, Janice Long, Wade Flora, and Jack Linder. Mary Anna was a Professor of Music at Manchester College; Janice, a private secretary to a handsome general at WPAFB; Wade, the Darke County Agricultural Extension Agent; and shy little Jack Linder, why he's governor of Ohio. I left Priscilla and went to the filling station to get my truck.

As I passed on through Gettysburg I couldn't help from sighing and smiling lightly at the jobs the future had had in store for the graduating class of the year nineteen hundred and fifty-two.

As the wheel of various clubs rolled around this year, it needed clubs to support it. One important club was the Y-Teens of Gettysburg. The Y-Teen Club is open to all girls of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes. It has a total of twenty-three members.

A point system is being used in the club for the first time. When a senior has the number of points needed she will be awarded a Y-Teen pin. To get the points, she must attend church, be present at the meetings and follow the rules and requirements of the club.

At the meeting of installation of this year's officers, the following girls took over their duties: President, Janet Nease; Vice President, Dixie Jo Hollinger; Secretary and Treasurer, Betty Lou Dickey; Reporter, Carolyn Powell; Song Leader, Wilda Kendall; and Advisor, Miss Lorene Bucholtz.

October 29, 1951 was the first meeting held by the Hi-Y. At that time there were six members. They elected officers and accepted an invitation to have the concession stand at the Hallowe'en Dance at Powell's Garage sponsored by the Gettysburg Civic Club.

The officers that were elected were as follows: Jack Alspaugh, President; Eldon Miller, Vice President; William Brewer, Chaplain, Hollie Burk, Treasurer; Lawrence Shafer, Secretary; Edward Jakubowski, Sergeant-at-Arms.

November 7 they had six new members to enroll.

Also they have made a new altar, taken care of chapel service, and attended a local church. They are to visit all local churches.
